Jason joined the office of U.S. Senator Ted Cruz in February 2018 as the Southeast Texas Regional Director where he regularly meets with elected officials, business leaders, stakeholders and constituent groups to address their concerns and promote economic growth for the region. Prior to that he was in the private sector working from 2013-2018 at a public relations and government affairs firm representing corporate clients like Republic Services, HOK Architects, Andrews Kurt LLP, Houston METRO and several others. Previously from 1994-2013 he worked for U.S. Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison, originally on her campaigns, then on Capitol Hill and in Houston from 1997 until to her retirement in 2013.

When not in the political area he spends his time bird hunting in South Texas, sailing the waters of his hometown Corpus Christi, and traveling to off-the-beaten-path places like Machu Picchu in Peru and trekking through Iraqi Kurdistan, skiing the Atlas Mountains of Morocco and bungee jumping off Victoria Falls in Zimbabwe – and all points in between.

He has been active at the University of Houston since a student in the early 1990s where as president of the Student Government Association he served for the first time on the UH Alumni Association Board of Directors and again on the UHAA board in the early 2000s for seven years when he chaired the Presidents' Council of the various constituent, special interest and college groups. He is a graduate of the UH College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences with a B.S. in Political Science and History.

He has volunteered with several area nonprofits, often on their boards of directors or chairing significant capital campaigns. Some of these include the Young Women's College Preparatory Academy, Greater Houston Pachyderm Club, Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo, Sigma Phi Epsilon National Fraternity, Harris County Historical Commission, Houston Wilderness, Scenic Houston, DiverseWorks Arspace, Glasstire among others.
